

EEI Meets on the Left Coast: EEI's 2018 Annual Convention

Magnificent San Diego weather. So much to do, from grazing at the zoo to glimpsing the Pacific Fleet base. Yet the many hundreds of attendees clustered in the convention's conference rooms most of the time to take in the topics of the day, resilience, renewable integration, cybersecurity, new regulatory and business models, workforce diversity and inclusion, electrification of transportation, and energy storage.

Elected EEI's Chair, Duke Energy CEO Lynn Good begins her one-year term. The second woman in a row to hold that position.

President Tom Kuhn congratulates PNM CEO Pat Vincent-Collawn as she completes her one-year term as EEI Chair. The first woman to hold that position.

San Diego Gas & Electric President Scott Drury accepts the Edison Award for his company's state-of-the-art wildfire protection programs.

Institute for Electric Innovation Executive Director Lisa Wood and NorthWestern Energy CEO Bob Rowe participate in a panel discussion.

Former Con Edison Vice President of Emergency Preparedness and Business Resiliency Carlos Torres throws out the first pitch at a San Diego Padres ballgame. As an EEI consultant, he has been serving as Power Restoration Coordinator in Puerto Rico.